

Defendants Enter Not Guilty Pleas In Supreme Court

Gillespie and Hasbrouck Arraigned on 2 Counts; Banks, Plean, Holmes in Court

11 Dismissals

No Indictments Are Found Against 11 Defendants by Grand Jury

Six defendants indicted by the March grand jury which reported to Justice Schirick in Supreme Court Monday afternoon were arraigned under seven bills, all pleading not guilty to the charges. There was one sealed indictment opened and the defendant arraigned, 11 other sealed indictments as well as disposition of the seven open indictments were referred to the County Court.

Myron Gillespie of 16 Post street, Kingston, and William Hasbrouck of New Paltz were arraigned under two bills charging burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry. The charges name December 12, 1938, and January 3, 1939, as the dates of the commission of the crimes. The two lads are charged with entering the Hasbrouck place and taking furniture and with entering the "Pice Garage at New Paltz and taking a tire. Pleas of not guilty were entered and both defendants said they had no attorney but did not desire the court to assign counsel at this time.

Reilly Arraigned

James Reilly, 48, of Alpine, N. J., a former watchman at Fallside Park, was arraigned under two bills charging burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry. Reilly is charged with entering a number of bungalows in the Lake Katrine and Leggs Mills section. The breaking into took place from last October 13 down until January 13, 1939, when State Troopers Reilly and Senecal picked up the defendant. It is charged that he broke into bungalows, used the food in the place and then moved on to another. This act prevented apprehension for a long time and kept the peace officers on a merry chase from October until after New Year's. Reilly pleaded not guilty and said he did not desire counsel assigned now.

Arthur W. Holmes of Esopus pleaded not guilty to abandonment and unlawfully failing to provide for his minor children. The charge named February 6, 1939. He said his attorney was Floyd W. Powell.

Banks Arraigned

Harry Banks of Kingston was arraigned on a charge of sodomy alleged to have taken place February 24, 1939, at his home. He pleaded not guilty and said he had an attorney but was unable to recall his name but agreed to be Daniel Hoffman who had appeared for him before in city court.

Samuel Plean of New York city was arraigned on a charge of burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry growing out of an alleged breaking into a downtown dress factory and attempting to remove machinery. This took place on December 21, 1938. He pleaded not guilty and Elmer H. Nathan was assigned by the court as defense counsel.

Under a sealed indictment Kenneth Osterhoudt was arraigned. It is charged that on January 1, 1939, he committed the crime of grand larceny, second degree, when he is charged with having taken a diamond ring of his employer, William Strong of Marlborough. N. LeVan Haver appeared for the defendant and a plea of not guilty was entered. Mr. Haver asked for 20 days to make

California Pilot Tells How Two Met Death as Craft Was Forced Down

San Pedro, Calif., March 21 (AP)—A 19-year-old airplane pilot, rescued after more than an hour of swimming in the Pacific, was brought here today with a story of a forced landing on the ocean and the resultant drowning of his father and uncle.

Richard Carey, 19, and James Buntini, 30, both of Long Beach, were pulled from the ocean late yesterday by the crew of a tugboat.

Carey said his father, Anthony J. Carey, 50, Long Beach mining man, and his uncle, Jack Carey, a Long Beach city employee, both drowned within 20 minutes of the forced landing.

Fogbound since Sunday, the four took off from Victorville, on the Mojave desert, yesterday. The first break in the clouds, Santa Catalina Island. Enroute back to the mainland, they ran out of fuel and were forced down on the ocean.

Coast guard boats searched far into the night for the older Careys, then brought Richard Carey and Buntini here.

McCabe Defendant In Action Based On 1937 Argument

William G. Brennan Brings Case for Assault, Battery as Result of Dispute on Series Wagers

William G. Brennan, former traveling representative for the New York Herald-Tribune, now employed in the publicity department of the New York World's Fair, has brought an action for assault and battery against John J. McCabe, local restaurant keeper, alleging that in a dispute over the stakeholder in a World's Series bet back in September, 1937, he was assaulted while in the McCabe Restaurant on Wall street.

Brennan, who lived in Kingston about two years, was a friend of McCabe at the time. They had made several bets on the outcome of the pennant race, Brennan betting on the New York Giants and McCabe on Chicago.

Tells of Winning

On the witness stand Brennan said he had won three $5 bets from McCabe and the money had been retained by Tommy Lianna as stakeholder until the conclusion of the season. Both men had put up $15 in cash.

On the evening of September 24, 1937, Brennan told Justice Schirick and the jury that he came home from Albany, stopped off at McCabe's tap room and engaged in conversation with McCabe over making a bet on the World's Series. The conversation was friendly and they were discussing a $2 bet on each championship game when the question of stakeholder came up. On prior bets the money had been put up but there was some discussion over putting up the money for the series games. Brennan said his was up from the other bets.

Discussion Over Stakeholder

It was during the discussion over stakeholder that Brennan said he remarked to his friend that he "doubted whether he (McCabe) trusted himself" and this he said started the trouble.

Plaintiff said he was standing at the bar at the time and McCabe was standing nearby. When he spoke the words McCabe came around, struck him in the face knocking him down. He did not recall anything until he was next being ejected from the premises. His mouth was injured, his head cut and he had a cut behind his ear and his coat was torn badly.

Forcefully Ejected

He was forcefully ejected. So far as he knew nothing more was said and he said he made no effort to defend himself or fight back. He was semi-conscious and may have attempted to defend himself but he could not recall it.

John Hurston and a friend took Brennan to two places in search of a doctor and later brought him back to his car on Wall street, where after making sure McCabe was not in the tap room, he recovered his hat and drove home and next day was attended by a doctor.

Hurston was called and testified he was in the place about to eat when he saw McCabe strike Brennan down. There had been no argument or loud talk. McCabe picked Brennan up and ejected him. Brennan once McCabe assisted him to his feet and then struck him again and this time Brennan's head struck a cigarette machine. He told of then going to aid Brennan whom he knew.

Densie E. Borg was called. She was in the restaurant and said she heard no argument but heard a scuffle and looked to see Brennan.

Speedy Action Due On Douglas, Senate Democrats Declare

Overwhelming Ratification of Court Appointee Seen Despite Disappointment of Westerners

White House Hint

Douglas for President Next Year, Says Rankin on Appointment

Washington, March 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt's nomination of William O. Douglas to succeed Justice Louis D. Brandeis on the Supreme Court appeared headed today for speedy and overwhelming Senate confirmation.

Although most western senators expressed disappointment that someone from their region was not chosen, none said specifically he would oppose the sandy-haired, 40-year-old chairman of the securities commission. Republican Leader McNary joined Democratic Leader Barkley in predicting quick approval.

Rep. Rankin (D-Miss.) said the appointment probably would mean Douglas' nomination for president on the Democratic ticket next year.

SEC Speculation

Speculation arose over the choice of a new SEC head. The remaining commissioners are understood to feel that on this selection will depend to a great extent whether the agency will continue its active course in stock regulation and regional reorganization of utilities, holding companies or whether, as one administration adviser put it, there will be a trend "to the right."

Some well-informed persons said Commissioner Jerome Frank, who was reported planning to resign, might be persuaded to stay on and become chairman. These men also proposed filling the vacancy on the commission from the present staff.

Among SEC officials mentioned as possibilities are Samuel O. Clark, Jr., head of the reorganization division; David Schenker, special counsel for the investment trust study; Chester Lane, general counsel; and Abe Fortas, assistant director of the utilities division.

Admirer of Brandeis

Mr. Roosevelt sent Douglas' nomination to the Senate yesterday. The Brandeis seat had been vacant since February 13 when the renowned jurist retired at the age of 82. The new appointee is an admirer of Brandeis, whose picture hangs beside his desk at the SEC.

The appointment lowers the average age of the nine justices to 62 years. Less than two years ago, just before Mr. Roosevelt made his first court appointment, it was a little under 72 years.

Administration leaders argued that to some extent the President had heeded the pleas of western senators to select a westerner. Douglas, born in Minnesota, spent his formative years in Washington.

Kenneth Otis Held As Car 'Borrower'

Kingston Man Picked Up by Pennsylvania Law at Milford Today

Officer Lenville Relyea accompanied by Bernhard S. Kramer of the district attorney's office left police headquarters this morning for Milford, Pa., to recover the latter's car which was stolen from the parking grounds near the court house last night.

The machine was recovered by the Milford police, the local police were notified today and Kenneth Otis of Chambers street was arrested and held in the Pennsylvania town pending arrival of the local officer today.

Mr. Kramer discovered his car missing at about 11:30 last night. He had been in the court house for a short time, he said, and had left the key in the machine. He notified the police at the sheriff's office and the local police at once and teletype messages were sent with the description and license number of the car. The fact that the car had "CU" plates and a low number seemed to make no difference to the party who "borrowed" it.

Assemblyman Conway's bill extends the time in which erection of disposal plants is mandatory from 1940 to 1944.

Congress to Evade Placing Tax Upon U. S. Securities

Protests Pour Into Capital From State, Municipal Governments; Levy Would Bring Little

Washington, March 21 (AP)—The stack of protests from state and municipal governments has grown so high that Congress is not likely to put any tax right away on the interest from federal and local securities.

Measured by the protests, the revenue that would come from such a levy is regarded by many members of Congress as pretty small. And from their standpoint, these protests come from highly potent places.

Receipts Sound High

In terms of the total volume of federal, state and local securities, the potential receipts sound high. There are $65,000,000,000 of federal and state securities outstanding. But this figure does not mean much in relation to the tax.

The latter would not fall on the securities, but on the interest paid to the bondholders. Interest on state, federal and local securities and those of federal agencies amounts roughly to $2,000,000,000 a year.

One Fifth of Total

One fifth of this however, is paid on the $15,000,000,000 of securities owned by federal, state and local governments, the trust funds they have set up, and to federal reserve banks. They figure in the sinking fund operations of the various governments. And one government may not tax another.

Another share of this interest, large but hard to measure, goes to benevolent, charitable, educational and religious institutions. The income of these institutions is not taxable.

Estimates of the amount the federal government would get from such a tax on interest range from 95 to 179 million dollars a year on state and local securities and from 109 to 337 millions on federal securities.

Spring's Here, but Hang Onto Your Winter Duds

Spring came in officially today with a promise of more seasonable weather, but with no definite promise of a marked rise in temperature.

Winter passed out this morning at 7:29 a. m. and the new season which begins the warmer side of a new year was ushered in with a blue sky and encouraging sunshine.

The temperature preceding spring's debut for 1939, however, was a definite product of winter. At 6:30 o'clock this morning the mercury had reached 22 degrees and the rise was gradual until noon when the day promised a touch of spring.

State WPA Orders Cut of 170 Men on County Rolls in April

Albany, March 21 (Special)—Plans for the operation of WPA in the upstate New York area for April, on the basis of funds actually available, will result in 8,519 workers being stricken from the rolls, it was announced here today by State WPA Administrator Lester W. Herzog.

In Ulster County, Administrator Herzog reported, a reduction from 1,292 to 1,122—a decrease of 170 workers—is to be made. On orders from Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA national administrator, to prepare for a reduction of working forces in the event that Congress does not approve the request for additional funds for WPA, Mr. Herzog said it

U.S. Note to Reich Sees No Legal Basis for Nazi Protectorate; Europe Awaits New Hitler Step

Soviet Russia Announces It Had Proposed Parley, but Britain Thought Idea Premature

Leaving Memel

Lithuanian Officials Said to Be Moving Families Out of Memel

(By The Associated Press)

Europe watched apprehensively today for some hint of Adolf Hitler's next move to extend the borders of expanding Germany.

Soviet Russia announced it had proposed a conference of the six "most interested" powers but that Britain had found the suggestion "premature."

Lithuanian officials were said to be moving families out of Memel, lending support to the belief that that Baltic region was marked by Hitler for his next territorial advance.

Surrender Expected

The Nazi leader in Memel, Dr. Ernst Neumann, announced he expected Lithuania to surrender Memel "in the near future."

Italians reported their government had called further military reserves, supplementing 60,000 men called in January.

The President of France arrived in England to visit the King and Queen. During his three-day stay France and Britain were expected to formulate additional measures designed to halt Hitler.

Premier Daladier, wielding new dictatorial powers, started a reorganization of French defenses through a series of decree laws.

The premier extended the 60-hour work week to railways, mines and other industries.

Jew Wounds German

Uneasiness was aroused in Rumania when a German citizen was wounded by a Jew at Brasov. Rumania, fearful that the disappearance of Czechoslovakia made her next on Germany's march to the east, appeared to have, at least temporarily, put a brake on the German advance by persuading Britain to buy more Rumanian products.

Hungary had at least 300,000 troops along her eastern frontier facing Rumania, where 1,500,000 Hungarians live.

The source of European forebodings, Germany, looked to her own political fences. High Italian sources said Hitler had sent a personal letter to Premier Mussolini to reassure the Italian concerning Germany's mid-European expansion.

Speculation Aroused

Some speculation has been aroused by the fact Mussolini, as far as is known, has sent Hitler no congratulatory message similar to the one he sent after the absorption of Austria, perhaps indicating the newest German advance had not pleased him.

Hitler's letter was being taken to Rome by Italy's Berlin envoy who was called home to report on the partition of Czechoslovakia.

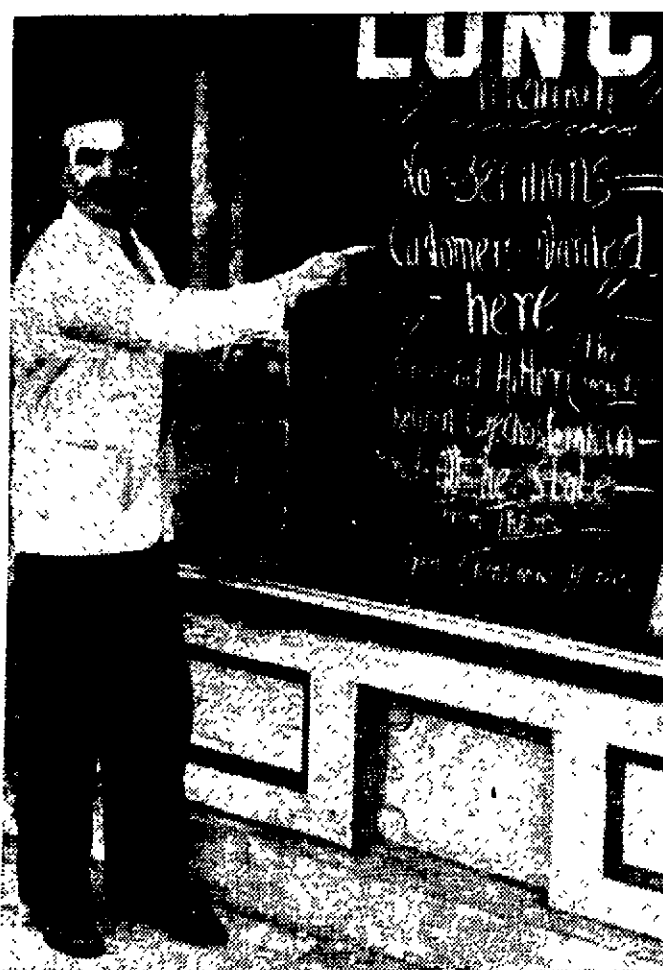

The French decrees, to stop up production of military supplies, were regarded as only the first of a series aimed at putting France on an equal footing with the totalitarian powers.

Collective Security

Britain's foreign policy turned toward collective security as a check to German expansion, if not by participation in such an anti-aggression conference as Soviet Russia proposed, then perhaps by a joint declaration of an anti-German bloc of powers to imply mutual defense against any aggressor.

The United States minister to Prague, preparing to close his legation, marked the disappearance of another central European nation as far as United States diplomatic recognition is concerned.

Mr. Horak Tells World

In case there should be doubt in some people's minds just how he stands on Hitler's seizure of Czechoslovakia, Fred Horak, (above) Somerville, Mass., restaurant operator, put this sign on the window of his establishment. Horak is a native of Prague, in what was Czechoslovakia.

Man's Body Taken From Creek Slip

Trackman William Menzel Discovers Body in First Stages of Decay

The body of an unidentified man was found in the Rondout creek about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon in the slip near the Island Dock just off Ferry street, and in a section of the creek still covered by ice.

Discovery of the body was made by William Menzel of 86 Cedar street who was greasing switches along the tracks leading into the First Packing Company plant.

No Information

The local police at the time The Freeman went to press were without any source of information which might establish the identity of the man. The body was in first stages of decay, and it is believed the man might have been in the water for more than a week or possibly longer.

Working Along Tracks

Mr. Menzel, who at the time when he first saw the body, was working on the tracks nearest the dock, said he thought the object which he first saw projecting through a hole in the ice, was a mattress or some similar object. He walked over to the end of the dock, however, and when he saw what was unmistakably a man's clothing, he notified the police.

Fifteen Feet From Dock

The spot where Mr. Menzel first saw the body was less than 15 feet from the dock and the hole through which the body projected was one of three or four in the vicinity.

An oil tanker, the Cleveland, which has been in the creek throughout the winter, is just across the slip where the man was found, but insofar as the police were able to learn there is no indication that the man might have been a member of the crew of that boat.

Clothing on the body was

U. S. Note Acknowledges Nazi Communiqué of Friday Telling of Terms of March 16 Decree

No Recognition

American Note Recognizes No Legal Basis for Status of Territories

Washington, March 21 (AP)—A United States note to Germany, released by the state department today, said this government "does not recognize that any legal basis exists" for Germany's protectorate over Bohemia and Moravia.

Enclosed with the note was a copy of the statement Acting Secretary of State Welles made last Friday containing this country's "condemnation" of what were described as Germany's "acts of wanton lawlessness and of arbitrary force."

Acknowledges Receipt

The United States note acknowledged the receipt of the German note of last Friday informing this government of the terms of the decree issued March 16 by the government of the Reich announcing the assumption of a protectorate over the provinces of Bohemia and Moravia.

"The government of the United States," the American note said, "has observed that the provinces referred to are now under the de facto administration of the foreign authorities. The government of the United States does not recognize that any legal basis exists for the status so indicated."

Views Made Known

The note then said that the views of this government were made known last Friday and for the information of the German government a copy of Welles' statement was enclosed.

This last paragraph had the effect of placing Welles' statement, which had been made to the public, on a diplomatic basis.

The state department released the next of the March 17 German note which consists almost entirely of a text of the March 16 decree.

"Under article 6 of this decree," the German note said, "the German Reich takes charge of the foreign affairs of the protectorate, in particular, of the protection of its nationals in foreign countries." The former diplomatic representatives of Czechoslovakia in foreign countries are no longer qualified for official acts.

No Specific Response

The American note of reply did not respond specifically to this paragraph, but an official said the refusal to recognize any legal basis for Hitler's act toward Czechoslovakia could be taken to include reference to Czechoslovakia's diplomatic representation.

Welles, commenting on Lord Halifax's announcement in British House of Lords yesterday that the British government was consulting with other nations, said that his communication had been addressed to this government on this subject by any other government.

Repeats Statement

The acting secretary of state repeated his statement of yesterday that no exchange of views had taken place between this and any other government, including

All-American Silk

Bronx Cleaner Says U. S. Can Produce Silk; Flags Prove Contention

New York, March 21 (AP)—Using only 100 per cent home-grown silkworms, John Ousta has produced what he believes are the first all-American silk flags.

Ousta, a Bronx cleaner who raises the worms as a hobby, imported silkworm eggs in 1935 from Turkey, his native country. When they hatched he selected the finest moths for breeding, and from one ounce of their eggs hatched 33,000 second generation worms.

In return for 700 pounds of mulberry leaves, they spun him 19 pounds of raw silk. Ousta sent 15 pounds to a Fatserson, N. J., firm which manufactured 94 American flags from it.

Ousta, who says America can end dependence upon Japan for raw silk and pull farming in this country from its plight by founding a silk industry, distributed the flags—measuring 28 by 18 inches—to patriotic organizations.

Ousta now has 1,000,000 eggs ready to distribute free to farmers, but they must have a mulberry tree. The worms are vegetarians and choosy.

Rutledge Named For Appeals Court

Washington, March 21 (AP)—Wiley Blount Rutledge, Jr., dean of the University of Iowa Law School, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be an associate justice of the United States Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

This is a new position created by the last Congress. Dean Rutledge had been prominently mentioned for the vacancy on the United States Supreme Court, to which William O. Douglas, chairman of the securities commission, was nominated yesterday.

The Iowa professor, only 44 years old, has been dean of the university since 1935. A native of Cloverport, Ky., he studied at the Universities of Wisconsin, Indiana and Colorado.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals is one of the most important in the judiciary system, handling as it does many cases involving government departments, and constitutionality of federal laws.

Florence Clarke Lynch of New York was named appraiser of merchandise of customs collection district No. 10 at New York city.

German Rails Must Come Out of WPA Job

Los Angeles, March 21 (AP)—Rails stamped "Germany," used for a dump car line in the $1,600,000 Olympic stadium drain, a Works Progress Administration project, will be torn out and replaced, WPA officials said today.

Fred W. Witt, local director of the treasury department's procurement division, said a Los Angeles machinery company had made a low bid of $720 on two tons of the rails, while American made rails would cost $1,152 in the open market.

Witt said the government would require the firm to complete its order with American rails and replace the German ones already in use.

Under Federal regulations, only American-made products may be used on WPA projects.

ton state. He came east for his schooling in law and became professor of law at Yale before he was appointed to the SEC in 1936. Since 1928, his legal residence has been Connecticut, and Senator Adams (D-Colo.), commenting on the nomination, called Douglas "a western man from Connecticut." He described westerners generally as being "greatly disappointed."

Westerners Dominate
Westerners dominated the judiciary subcommittee selected to investigate the nomination. Members are Senator Hatch of New Mexico, King of Utah, McCarran of Nevada, Burke of Nebraska, O'Mahoney of Wyoming, all Democrats, and Borah of Idaho and Danaher of Connecticut, Republicans.

All these, except possibly King, were reported to favor confirmation. King said he had an "open mind."

Although friends said Douglas did not know yet when he would leave the SEC, he already was at work winding up his SEC affairs. This included turning over to other commissioners information he has gained from a personal study of utility holding companies, which it was learned may result in hastening the process of reorganization.

After he resigns, and until a successor is named, George C. Mathews will be acting chairman. Following up Douglas' recent denunciation of proposals for a stock exchange committee for modification of trading rules, Mathews yesterday wrote William McMartin, president of the New York exchange, that the SEC would be glad to talk over the suggestions.

Buckard Against Anti-Arms Bills

New York County's Past Commander Is Speaker At Legion Party

Addressing the 300 or so Legionnaires and friends at Kingston Post's annual birthday party in Spinnys' at Port Ewen, Monday night, commemorating the 20th anniversary of the American Legion, Joseph J. Buckard, past commander of New York county, implored them to oppose all legislation against inadequate armament in this country.

Legionnaire Buckard, president of the New York Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, spoke on the topic "Twenty Years are Now History—What Next?" Only providence could answer this question, he said, with Europe in the present state of unrest.

Organization For Defense
Touching briefly on the formation of the American Legion after the World War, Buckard brought out the policy of the organization for adequate national defense in opposition to the pacifists, and urged that all possible pressure be brought to bear against the Ludlow Bill, which, he said, "is one of the most dangerous pieces of legislation ever to come before this country."

This bill would leave the declaration of war, the speaker said, up to the voters, and in these times when things happen so rapidly would be disastrous in case of invasion. "We must put our trust in the guidance of those representatives we send to Washington to handle the affairs of the country."

"God Only Knows"
Referring to his subject concerning what will happen next, and touching on the invasion of Austria, the Sudetenland and lately Czechoslovakia, Speaker Buckard said "God only knows when or where the Hitler shall stop."

"There's no prejudice in this grand country of ours. But with this sort of mad-dog vengeance going on across the sea there's no telling when all our great institutions may be in danger of destruction."

"We must be calm in these troubled times, stand by our great government and stand behind every move for adequate national defense."

The birthday party, Kingston Post's second annual event to commemorate the organization of the American Legion, was a jolly affair with peppy floor show and orchestra from WOR radio artists bureau that pleased to the extent that the musicians were hired to play an hour longer than scheduled.

McCabe Defendant In Assault Case

nan struck down and then escorted out.

The action was being continued when court recessed for the day. George Rusk of Rusk & Rusk appears with N. LeVan Haven of counsel for plaintiff and Judge Bernard A. Culliton for defendant.

Witnesses This Morning
Continuing the assault action in supreme court this morning before Justice Schirck and a jury several additional witnesses were sworn by William G. Brennan in his action for damages against John J. McCabe, local restaurant proprietor.

Tony Fiore, sexton at the East Kingston church, was sworn. He was in the restaurant with John Hurston at the time. Fiore was just entering the grill when he said he saw McCabe strike Brennan in the face. Brennan fell to the floor striking his head on the bar rail and then McCabe assailed Brennan to his feet, struck him again forcing him to strike his head against a cigarette machine, and then a third blow was struck knocking Brennan to the floor a second time. Fiore said he next saw McCabe eject Brennan. With Hurston he attempted to get Brennan to a doctor but later Brennan asked to be returned to his car on Wall street and left them. Fiore said he saw no attempt by Brennan to strike a blow and he seemed to be in a dazed condition.

Dr. Goodyear testified that next day he treated Brennan for cuts and abrasions as well as abrasions on his face and head. He said a scar on the forehead would be a permanent one.

Mrs. Ruth Smith, who with her husband and mother, was in the restaurant told of seeing Brennan struck down. She said things had been quiet in the place until she heard a noise at the end of the bar and when she looked around she saw McCabe strike a man. He fell. McCabe then took off his glasses and wrist watch and laid them on a table, returned to the man and assisted him to his feet and then struck another blow which threw the man into the cigarette machine cutting his head.

Mrs. Smith did not see a third blow struck but saw Brennan ejected. His coat was torn. McCabe then replaced his glasses and watch and went out.

With the party was Mr. and Mrs. William Melleri who have been summoned as witnesses.

Jurors not engaged on the case were excused until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Police Report No Definite Clues in Search for Auto

Local police and other officials cooperating in the effort to track down the driver of a car believed responsible for the death of Joseph Harris, 63, of West Stockbridge, Mass., who was found fatally injured on Foxhall avenue Sunday night, reported no definite leads today.

The aged man who came here to attend the funeral of his brother, Alphonsus Harris, of 87 Foxhall avenue, will be buried in St. Mary's cemetery tomorrow morning. The funeral will be held from the Jensen and Deegan funeral home at 15 Downs street, tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock at St. Mary's Church where a requiem Mass will be offered.

It was the husband of Katherine C. Boehmhold, brother of Miss Hanna Harris and Mrs. John Steltz and son of the late Eugene and Florence Harris.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral. Injuries discovered through an autopsy and the manner in which Harris' clothes were torn and marked indicated, the police said, that he was struck by a car while attempting to cross the street.

The verdict of the coroner, Howard B. Humiston of Kerhonkson, is being held pending possible apprehension of the driver of the car which struck the aged man.

John Benkert of Stony Ridge, who is staying at 84 Prince street, and James Connelly of Sumner street, who first discovered Harris lying in the street, reported to the police that they saw two cars pass the scene, before they stopped to investigate. The police believe that one of these cars might have been the one which struck and fatally injured Harris.

Delay Decision on Labor Law Hearing

Washington, March 21 (AP)—The senate labor committee voted today to delay until next Tuesday a decision on when to start hearings on proposed amendments to the Wagner labor relations law.

Senator Borah (R-Ida.) said the Congress of Industrial Organizations had advised the committee it wished more time for its labor peace conferences with the American Federation of Labor.

Borah said negotiations between the rival labor organizations would be resumed Friday, and that general sentiment in the committee was to give the negotiators more time in which to reach a settlement.

Hearings on amendments to the Wagner law, one set of which was sponsored by the AFL, originally were scheduled to start March 10, but were postponed when the AFL and the CIO started peace conferences at the suggestion of President Roosevelt.

Amateur Radio Hour Draws Packed House

The Masonic Lodge room on Wall street was packed to such an extent that the firemen said no more last night for the amateur radio hour given under the auspices of the Craftsmen's Club of Kingston Lodge No. 10, F. & A. M.

The program, which was in charge of Paul Zucca, was thoroughly enjoyed and with numerous encores brought the time to nearly 11 o'clock before "broadcasting" was discontinued for the night.

There was also a big demand for the refreshments, helped along by the persistence of the "barkers" who went through the audience during the progress of the show crying their wares.

In addition to the amateur numbers there were offerings by several of Kingston's well known professional entertainers.

Judge Traver to Consider Criminal Cases April 3

County Judge Frederick G. Traver announced Monday that criminal matters would be taken up the first week of the April term of County Court which will be convened Monday, April 3, at 2 o'clock.

The criminal calendar, which will include several cases, will be moved and the indictments handed down Monday by the March grand jury will also be taken up. There are eleven sealed indictments made, the sealed indictments found in the March term being transferred to county court for disposition as well as the seven open bills.

It is usual for the County Court to devote the first week to civil matters but Judge Traver is taking up the criminal cases during the first week of the next term.

Quake Jars Imperial Valley

El Centro, Calif., March 21 (AP)—The second sharp earthquake of the day jarred portions of the Imperial Valley at 5:51 a. m. (PST) (8:51 a. m. EST) today, accompanied by a clearly audible roar. Police Sgt. George Bucklin said the tremor lasted five seconds, rattled dishes but did no damage. He reported it also was felt strongly in Calexico, to the south on the Mexican border, but not in Brawley, 14 miles north. A one-second "jarring" quake was felt at 12:35 a. m. (3:35 a. m. EST).

Must Be Retained

Washington, March 21 (AP)—Secretary Wallace said today the present farm program must be retained if agriculture is to gain from a prospective improvement in business conditions.

Lights of New York

Warrior: As Col. P. E. Barbour was coming along Broad street the other afternoon, a terrific commotion broke out when he reached Stone street. A crowd led by a woman had spotted a little, lean alley cat and started something. It was a tactical blunder on the part of the chow as the feline immediately swarmed all over it, doing damage wherever it struck. A gallant gentleman leaped out of the crowd and, taking care to avoid claws, tossed the militant cat out into the street. The woman picked up her injured pet and endeavored to comfort it. The cat, however, had other ideas. It made its way back to the curb, poised and in a neat eight-foot leap again attached itself to the chow. Once more it was pulled off and this time kicked out into the middle of the street. The colonel, who admires spirit, reported more or less sorrowfully that before the cat could wriggle through traffic and get back, the lady and the chow had gone away from there.

Protection: It seems that after all these years, drivers of fire trucks are being given shelter from the weather. In the past, day or night, hot or cold, rain or shine, they sat on the front seat with nothing around or over them. Any driver knows what that means on a cold winter night, especially when aroused from sound slumber. But the new apparatus recently placed in service by the city has cabs for drivers. And I'm one of those who are heartily in favor of the change. Tough enough piloting fire apparatus over New York's streets without being exposed to the elements.

Intelligence: At the risk of making this a fire and dog department, I'm inclined to mention Spots of Engine company No. 65. Spots is a Dalmatian and therefore is a true fire hound. Whenever an alarm comes in, and Engine company 65 being on Forty-third street between Fifth and Sixth avenue, rolls off, Spots goes right along. He rides on the drivers seat but seems sitting down. So as the engine tears through traffic, he looks very much like one of those iron dog statues that adorned middle western front lawns when I was a kid. But remarkable stability is not Spots' sole accomplishment. He responds to alarms just as do his human companions and, just as they do, knows the signal that sends his company into action.

Different: Miss Olive Jean Cragan, who topped the civil service list for appointment as a policeman, has chestnut hair, hazel eyes, and a milk-white skin. In fact, she's so pretty that it might be a pleasure to be arrested by her. She's five feet, two inches tall, weighs 121 pounds, rides horseback, toe dances and is a judo expert. She loves music. A senior in Brooklyn college, she is a shark in Latin and earns money by tutoring. After she receives her appointment, uniform and equipment she'll study law in her spare time. Thus in Miss Cragan, a new cop era.

Domestic: A night-club patron, finding that he had taken one drink too many, called up that organization which rents chauffeurs at a dollar an hour and asked to be driven to his home over in Jersey. As the car drew up to the residence, an irate wife ru hed up to the chauffeur. "So you're the one who keeps him out late nights!" she screamed. And with that she administered several sound slaps. The chauffeur merely went on his way without a word. And so pleased with his courage was the husband that he now has the same man drive him whenever he comes to town. There is one place, however, to which he will not allow him to take him—to that home over in Jersey.

End Piece: My pet peeve is the doorman who slam taxi doors when not tipped or tipped less than they think they should receive for a useless service. A man and a woman got in a taxi in front of a well-known hotel and the untipped doorman slammed the door with great force. In fact such force that the glass was shattered. And the taxi driver leaped out and gave him two beautiful black eyes.

Planting Fish by Plane

Successful in Montana

HELENA, MONT.—Planting fish by airplane might sound as feasible as shooting rockets to Mars, but this method has proved successful in Montana.

Three galvanized metal cylinders, three feet long, pointed at one end and open at the other, were filled with 2,000 rainbow and native trout ranging from two to three inches long.

Flying from 100 to 400 feet heights over isolated lakes, the containers were tossed from the plane. They burst when they struck the water. Only 50 fish, it is estimated, were killed.

John Schofield, superintendent of Montana Fish Hatcheries, was delighted with the experiment.

"I'm sure that fish can be planted cheaper and faster by plane than by pack train in isolated lakes," Schofield said.

Text of Note
The text of the United States note to Germany on the country's assumption of a protectorate over Bohemia and Moravia follows:

March 20, 1939.
Herr Hans Thomsen,
Charge d'affaires ad interim of Germany.

Sir:
I acknowledge the receipt of your note of March 17 in which, by direction of your government, you inform the government of the United States of the terms of the decree on March 16 by the government of the Reich announcing the assumption of a protectorate over the provinces of Bohemia and Moravia.

The government of the United States has observed that the provinces referred to are now under the de facto administration of the German authorities. The government of the United States does not recognize that any legal basis exists for the status so indicated. The views of this government with regard to the situation above referred to, as well as with regard to related facts, were made known on March 17. I enclose herewith for the information of your government a copy of the statement in which those views were expressed.

Accept, sir, the renewed assurances of my high consideration.

Finger Named Election Board Stenographer

A meeting of the Board of Elections was held this morning at the office of the board in the county building. At that time the resignation of Thomas J. Plunket as stenographer to the board was received and accepted.

In place of Mr. Plunket the board appointed Harry M. Finger of Saugerties.

Several days ago Mr. Plunket tendered his resignation because of press of personal matters. Many of the claims against the city of New York growing out of the Lackawack water project are being tried by Mr. Plunket as attorney for claimants.

Mr. Finger for many years was associated with the Saugerties-New York Steamboat Company.

There was no other business transacted by the Board of Elections.

Express Employees Receive Awards for Safe Driving

Recognition for their safe driving was given four employees of the local office of the Railway Express Agency by W. B. Ingalsbe, agent in charge, at a meeting held March 18, it was announced today.

Three of the men, D. F. Balzer, J. E. Keator and W. F. Seitz were presented with the merit awards for four years of driving with no accidents and T. J. McAuliffe was honored with the award for three years of safe driving.

Similar awards were given operators of the Railway Express Agency throughout the United States in recognition of their "no accident" records in 1938. Many have been accident free, the officials say, for four years in succession, since the inauguration of the five-year safe driving plan in 1935 by L. O. Ilcud, president of the company.

Provides Sleeping Quarters

Waterloo (UP)—Sheriff Herbert P. Yellio believes "transients are all human beings and they must stay someplace," and as a result is going to permit them to sleep in the county jails here and at Ovid even if he can't feed them. The Seneca county board of supervisors adopted a resolution prohibiting feeding of transients in the county jails, suggesting they be sent to the county home.

"Y" Secretaries, Directors Banquet

"It is not enough to say, I am for character and then not do anything to help it in your respective communities," challenged Dr. James Lee Ellenwood, general secretary of the state committee of the New York State Y. M. C. A.'s at the banquet of the board of directors and employed secretaries at the Newburgh Y. M. C. A. last night.

President Augustus W. Bennet, of the Newburgh Association, introduced the Hon. Peter Cantline, president of the New York State Y. M. C. A. committee, who urged the laymen and secretaries to instill in their members the idea of treating each as their brother. If everyone would practice this great principle it would not be necessary to build great battleships, develop great stores of armament and also build bomb shelters for protection.

Dr. James Lee Ellenwood, the keynote speaker of the evening, urged laymen and secretaries to seek to develop the qualities of character in their building programs. Think of each individual as an important part of this great society in which we live. Start in the homes and make the sons and daughters self reliant.

The Kingston delegation was composed of Directors Russell H. Broughton, Dr. Julian I. Gifford, President H. L. Winters, of the junior board of directors, and General Secretary Robert L. Sisson.

Nearly 100 men representing the Y. M. C. A.'s of Poughkeepsie, Port Jervis, Nyack, Maybrook Railroad, Orange county, Newburgh and Kingston were in attendance. So successful was the evening that it will become an annual affair.

Stanley Salmann of Rosendale, who was charged with a larceny charge. The complainant requested a dismissal of the complaint.

Henry Thomas, held on a robbery charge growing out of an affair in the city of Kingston, was discharged from custody.

Samuel Yanowitz and Blanche Rosenberg, a town of Yonkers case involving a check matter. Peter Longi of Poughkeepsie, Longi was accused of impersonating an officer during the Quick-Central Hudson case when it was charged he "had attempted to make an investigation."

Samuel Waruch, charged with manslaughter arising out of an automobile accident at Nanapanoch in which John Cushman was killed. This was dismissed on request of Mrs. Cushman. Cushman was struck while riding a bicycle in the village.

REFUGEE FROM NAZIS KISSES AMERICAN SOIL

Overcome by joy at reaching America from Germany, where he had spent nine months in Nazi concentration camps, Herman Leopoldi, Viennese song writer, fell to the ground and kissed the free soil of the United States. At the New York pier to greet him were his wife, who came to this country three months ago, and his daughter, who came six months ago.

auditorium to hear the Mississippi Jubilee Singers. Forced to wait more than a half hour for the entertainers, who had been held up by the storm, the audience was well repaid for their wait and the program was thoroughly enjoyed. In the first half of the program the Singers rendered a dozen or more negro spirituals and the second half consisted of well known old folk songs. A feature of this half, and which the children enjoyed mostly, was the dancing by a young boy. The Jubilee Singers were brought to the school as a part of the school assembly work.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MARCH 21, 1939.

SAFE DRIVING REWARD

Due to the activities of the Insurance Department of the State of New York in advocating the preferred risk rating for automobiles, about 500,000 motor car owners will find that their insurance rates for the year 1939 will be substantially lower than they ever have been, according to the annual report of the superintendent. Those to be rewarded are the careful drivers who have had no accidents for the past two years; or one accident, and that involving property damage alone.

Figures furnished by the superintendent show that the owners of over 600,000 passenger automobiles carry liability insurance in this state. It is estimated that between 85 and 88 per cent merit Class A preference. Approximately a quarter of a million of these find their insurance renewable this time of year. Automobiles are frequently bought in the Spring resulting in the need for liability coverage at this time. The new policies, that are being issued have on them a stamp or, in some cases, a gold seal which reads: "This policy is written at the Class A rates in consideration of the safe driving record of the named insured."

By putting car owners and drivers on a reward system, insurance companies have gained their cooperation. Motorists realizing that every accident claim must be paid out of their contributions to the general fund are more careful in the operation of their vehicles. With a reward in dollars and cents ahead, motorists will be more careful with the resultant reduction in accidents. Rewarding those who have had no accidents and requiring those who have had to pay more seems equitable.

Superintendent Pink reports that the Insurance Department is convinced that a much greater volume of automobile insurance should be in force in the state for the protection of the public. That this volume may be increased substantially and within a reasonably short period by continued efforts of insurance enterprise to popularize it, seems dubious. Therefore, it is reasonable to assume that the answer will be legislation on the subject requiring greater financial responsibility on the part of the owners and drivers.

UNCLE HOLDS THE BAG

The United States is losing considerable trade as a result of absorption of Czechoslovakia by the Nazis, but that isn't all the financial story, by any means.

The little republic owed our people and government about $230,000,000 of post-war debt and other obligations. These debts, along with $62,000,000 that was owed to our country by Austria when it was taken over by Germany, make nearly $300,000,000 for which the Nazi government is now considered responsible.

But it is probably not bothering Hitler, Goering & Co. They have steadfastly refused, so far, to acknowledge any responsibility for the Austrian debt, and are expected to treat the Czechoslovakian obligations in the same way. Unless a change of heart occurs in Berlin, the same irresponsible attitude will be adopted as Hitler adds other countries to his Nazi empire.

CONGRESSIONAL PENSIONS

Some sort of retirement pay or direct pension for members of Congress is now being discussed. Speaker Bankhead approved the idea the other day, adding that he had not initiated the movement and no definite formula or proposal was ready for consideration. The idea, however, he held worthy of further study.

Those favoring the suggestion point to the fact that Federal judges and civil employees receive retirement pay. The former become eligible for pensions after a certain period of service, the latter by making contributions from their salaries to a retirement fund.

Many men go to Congress expecting to make that service a career. They give up the business in which they have previously made their living. If, after some years, they are not re-elected, the resumption of the old business is often difficult.

It is argued, too, that senators and representatives might be greatly relieved from much of the pressure brought by lobbying groups if they were sure of retirement pay. They could be more independent and courageous in the stand they take on important issues.

New York State allows its Congressional representatives to share in the benefits of the State Retirement Pay Act by contributing a percentage of their salaries. More than half of New York's representatives at Washington are preparing to do so.

It is a question about which more undoubtedly will be heard. Yet it doesn't fit very neatly into the current talk of needed economy. What would George Washington, Benjamin Franklin or Thomas Jefferson have thought of it?

BIGGER, BETTER PAPERS

It is a rather common saying that you can get most for your money by buying a newspaper. Here is some evidence to back the statement.

The family economics bureau of one of the insurance companies, studying newspapers as "a major educational medium," finds that the newspaper reader today gets 250 to 500 per cent as much information as his grandfather got from his daily paper fifty years ago.

The average daily, it reports, in the course of this half-century has grown to four or five times its former size; and the strictly educational material in it has increased 150 per cent.

Another gain reported by the investigating bureau is that newspaper writing has become so much more condensed and expressive that 1,000 words now tell as much as used to be told in 2,000 words. That is at least what newspaper men try to do.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

STOMACH AND INTESTINAL ULCER

One of the mistakes often made is to wait too long before undergoing an operation that has been shown to be necessary. During the days or weeks that follow the condition is gradually becoming worse and the dread of the operation is lowering the defensive forces of the body. Then when operation is performed the results are not all that was expected or hoped for. The very fact that the patient has the operation hanging over him interferes with the proper working of the body processes—digestion, heart rate, nerve reaction, and others.

While we are all familiar with the way the heart rate and the breathing become more rapid when we are undergoing any emotional upsetment, we often fail to remember that every other process, particularly digestion, is also disturbed.

One of the common ailments believed to be due to a considerable extent to nervousness and emotional disturbance is ulcer of the stomach (gastric ulcer) and ulcer of the first part of the small intestine adjoining the stomach—duodenum (duodenal ulcer).

"The fact that among large groups of persons living in the same climate and under the same standards of life, ulcer develops in only a few, shows that ulcer is not due to 'outside' conditions or factors but to some 'inside' factor. The importance of individual tendency or predisposition is shown in the number of slender individuals with this blood who suffer with ulcer." These individuals are usually of the worried or anxious type and are upset by circumstances that would not bother others. The upsetment interferes with the nervous impulses going from brain to stomach and disturbs the movements of the stomach as it churns the food and also causes more stomach digestive juice to be manufactured than is needed. This means that even if ulcer is cured by medicine or diet, or actually removed by operation, these patients, because of their nervousness and their emotional disposition, will cause another ulcer to grow or develop.

The thought then is that while medicine and diet will heal the great majority of stomach and intestinal ulcers, to prevent ulcers returning or new ones from developing, the patient must learn to acquire calmness of spirit and not let little things upset him.

Douglas is in Sympathy With New Deal and Yet Has Confidence of Many Wall Street Men

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, March 21.—President Roosevelt now has appointed four out of the nine justices of the Supreme Court of the United States. Fate may give him another appointment before this second presidential term is over, thus rendering strangely superfluous the controversy which took up so much time in the 1937 session of Congress and started the Democratic party on its present era of division. If one counts Justice Harlan Stone as a consistent "Liberal," there now are at least five justices who favor a "Liberal" interpretation of the constitution.

The latest appointee, William O. Douglas, carries out one objective of Mr. Roosevelt's 1937 effort to reorganize the Supreme Court by adding more justices—youth on the bench—even more than do the three other justices selected by President Roosevelt.

The other objective—a "Liberal outlook" with respect to the interpretation of the constitution—can certainly be assured through Mr. Douglas, just as it was achieved with the appointment of Messrs. Reed, Black and Frankfurter.

Just what is a "liberal outlook" may take a little time to develop, perhaps until some concrete cases arise involving clear issues as between the confiscation doctrine, often espoused by "radicals," and the idea of conservation of property for the individual, hitherto championed as true liberalism.

But it would be wrong to give the impression that most cases that come before the Supreme Court of the United States contain constitutional questions. Most of them concern the conflict of private rights, and this is one reason why, in the past, corporation lawyers who have had a successful career in private practice have usually been picked for the Supreme Court. In this respect, the new appointees, with the possible exception of Justice Reed, do not have much actual experience.

Justice Black was in political life, and Professors Frankfurter and Douglas have been teaching law at Harvard and Yale, respectively, so they have hardly had much contact with the actual operations of the many kinds of businesses whose activities come into litigation of the kind that reaches the Supreme Court.

Mr. Douglas, on the other hand, in the last few years has had experience of a rare sort, being chairman of the securities and exchange commission, where he has learned a great deal about investment banking, securities sales on the stock exchanges, and reorganization proceedings as they relate to the bankruptcy laws—an insight into corporation finance which should prove invaluable to him on the bench.

The principal objection which will be urged against Mr. Douglas is geographical, for western senators have wanted a justice appointed from the west. It is true Mr. Douglas has spent more years of his life in the northwest than anywhere else, but the basic idea in urging a westerner has been the possible selection of someone actually engaged, in his adult life, in practicing law in the west.

Just why this should be a requirement is not easy to explain, because it would naturally be assumed that an intelligent and capable jurist should be appointed irrespective of what section of the country claims him. When it was President Hoover's task to appoint a man to the Supreme Court and the west claimed that particular appointment as a matter of priority and tradition, he brushed aside geographical considerations to appoint the late

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

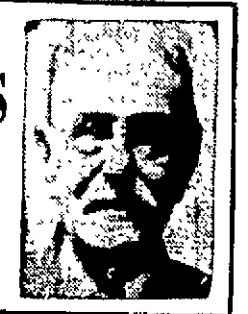

No. 31—Rosedale

Deemed one of the most handsome steamboats of her class ever to sail the waters of the Hudson river, the "Rosedale" enjoyed an existence of 45 years in which she saw service on many routes and finally was consumed by the flames in the same port where she was launched many years before.

The wooden hull of the "Rosedale" was constructed at Norfolk, Virginia in 1877, being 216 feet long. She had a breadth of beam of 34 feet two inches, depth of hold 10 feet. The gross tonnage was 938 with the net tonnage rating of 677, and she was powered with a vertical beam engine with a cylinder diameter of 50 inches with a 12 foot stroke.

The "Rosedale" was built for service on the James river but was soon brought north to New York waters. Her first appearance in New York harbor created much favorable comment among the steamboat men who admired her trim lines and considered her a very handsome vessel for her class. Few steamboats in and about New York harbor at that period carried their boilers in the hold and forward of the engine as did the "Rosedale."

In the summer of 1878 the "Rosedale" was placed in service between Peekskill and New York as a dayboat. This period of service was short-lived and the "Rosedale" next appeared as an excursion vessel around New York port.

Seven schools reported a total average weekly attendance of 293 members.

Earl Brundage, well known mountain road farmer, is driving a recently acquired Essex sedan.

A stubborn chimney and woodwork fire at the Earl C. Elmhurst residence in the village center Sunday brought quite a crowd of helpers to the scene. Efforts to put out the smoldering flames with water and chemical extinguishers proving futile, the Woodstock firemen were summoned to Shokan. The fire finally was reached and extinguished several hours after it was first noticed by the Elmhursts.

The snow fields still hold practically intact, there having been very little thawing weather throughout last week. Conditions have been bad on the narrow Ridge Road where the plowed snow precluded passing by cars in most places.

Robert Secor, well known up-town Bull Market attaché, paid a visit to his Shokan place Sunday.

Mrs. Harold Eignor of Pine Hill spent a few days last week with her sister, Mrs. Fred Adsit, and family.

Shokan friends of Mrs. Amasa Slawson of Kingston will be sorry to learn of Mrs. Slawson's continued illness which has kept the former Shokan woman confined to her home for the past several months.

Charles Arnold of Kingston was numbered among the recent callers in the village.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters

Asy Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.
Weston, Asy's cousin, selectman of Billingsgate.

Yesterday: Madame Menz is Slade's sister-in-law. She presents to help Asy.

Chapter 11

'Would-Be Burglar'

Asy expected to find Weston over at the hall, and the usual number of bystanders remembered seeing him just a few minutes before, so he waited in the exposition rooms, where the local antique collections, and the flower and vegetable and preserve entries, held sway.

J. Arthur Brinley came up to him.

"Good evening, visiting our cousin," Brinley said.

"Yup."
Weston tells me that Slade has left town for the time being. He,
Brinley nodded knowingly, "says Slade was scared out of town, but Bessie and I know that you managed it. I wanted you to know that we appreciate it, sir, we appreciate it deeply!"

"Don't thank me."
"Ah, modest, as everyone says.
But you know you know," Asy wondered what sort of reward that was supposed to be. "And—Mayo?"

"What?"
"Er—some of the ladies, they want to take down their quilts for the night. I don't want to be rude to our guests, but on the other hand, it's a chilly night, and the quilts—you know what I mean.
Have you any suggestions?"

"There's General Philbrick over there," Asy said. "Tell him to take out his watch, and announce in that voice of his that the exposition will close in five minutes, but will open tomorrow at—well, whenever it does. Then close the door, and the ladies can rip down quilts to their heart's content, and no feeling hurt."

"Wonderful!" Brinley said.
"Thank you! I never thought of—oh, thank you!"

Ten minutes later the antique quilts of Billingsgate—pine trees, log cabins, rising suns, birds and baskets, ship's wheel, roses of Sharon, duck's foot in the mud—and all the hundred and one other kinds, were on the way to their respective homes to warm the tourists and the old settlers.

Asy grinned and strolled up stairs towards the town offices.

A man coming down brushed by him hurriedly, taking the steps down four at a time.

Asy glanced after him curiously, for the man wore the first dark, city-like clothes he had seen in a long while.

Then, at the selectmen's offices,
Asy stopped short.

The glass-topped door was open,
but there was no light in the offices beyond. He could see the marks where the lock and door had been forced.

'Goldlocks'

Asy stood there and surveyed the situation.

There was no sense to romping downstairs and trying to pursue the man, for the chances of catching him were something less than slim. If the fellow continued his original pace, he was now beyond pursuit, anyway. And in the confusion outside the hall, with doctors of cars starting and turning and departing, it would be next to impossible to find anyone. Not without creating a lot more confusion.

Weston appeared at the head of the stairs.

"Brinley said you wanted me—is anything the matter? What's this?"

"A gent," Asy informed him,
"has been prying into that which don't concern him. Come on let's see the damage."

Weston nearly wept.

"Asy, has someone broken in there? Who? Did you see—let's go after him!"

"He's not important, relatively speakin'," Asy said, "but what he may have found or got or done or taken away matters a lot. Come see."

Nervously, Weston went to work in the office.

"He hasn't touched Jeff's desk, and he hasn't touched Brinley's desk, but he has been at my desk—what are you laughing about now, Asy Mayo? This isn't—"

"You sounded so much," Asy said, "like Goldlocks on the three beers. Go on, Wes, I'm sorry."

"He didn't touch the files. They're right. He didn't touch the safe, thank God, because I've got a hundred times as much cash there as usual. As far as I can see, Asy, he only went to my desk, and everything seems to be in the right order except my lower big drawer."

Scouts Show Speed

Spencer scout (P)—Boy Scouts showed their preparedness here by mobilizing 59 scouts in a 15-mile radius within 60 minutes after the two "children" were reported lost in a woods. The children were grainbags, object of a mimic child hunt to test scouts' efficiency. The emergency call, unexpected, was telephoned to three villages at 12:30 p. m. In 20 minutes after the first patrols had been sent out, one squad returned with one in grainbags. The second "child" was brought in 30 minutes later.

While dressing, a man staying in a hotel wished to summon the hotel maid. The only bell he could discover was in the bathroom at-several times without result.

Later, having dressed, he encoun-

Maid—Which bell did you ring,

Man—The bathroom bell.

Maid—Ah, but you shouldn't be used in case you feel faint or

Man About Manhattan
By George Tucker

NEW YORK—If there were such a caste system among cities in this country New York would have to dine at the second table.
We stand for some things that are pretty crude at times. The newest offshoot of the death pool is an example, a widespread sweepstakes that was set into motion by the death of Pope Pius XI.

There were hundreds of them in the city and each was a lottery predicated on the ultimate choice of the College of Cardinals. You found them in office buildings, department stores, and pool halls.

This is the way they worked:
there are 62 members of the College of Cardinals. Each Cardinal was given a number and those numbers were sold. If you had a dollar sweepstakes you paid $1, drew a name, and then sat back to wait the election of a new Pope.

The lucky man took the jack-pot.
Some of these sweepstakes ran into real money. I knew of two that were $20 a name, and one that was $35. The winners of these were rewarded with sizable sums. But most of the pools were of the dollar variety, and it is a conservative estimate to say that in New York a thousand of them were in operation.

The original death pool, which still flourishes day and night, works like this: You select a list of famous men who are all well along in years. These names are tossed into a hat and sold. You pay your money and you take your pick. Then everybody sits around and waits for someone on the select list to die. If your "man" goes first, you win.

The late Colonel Jacob Ruppert adorned many such lists. Pope Pius himself was another. A taxi driver told me his son-in-law twice held the name of the late John D.
Rockefeller and gave it up in disgust "when a dark horse beat him out." That's the way the caddy phrased it.

Gambling is at high tide in New York, despite crusades and anti-vice campaigns. Many people hold that it is no crime to wager a friendly dollar, or even 5,000 friendly dollars, on a single roll of the dice. I don't think it is a crime.
But it is illegal. And where one finds so many unsavory elements as are in New York, games of chance are always identified with the double-deal and the double cross.

There are more side games, policy rackets, and lotteries, plus back-alley and penthouse crap games today than Arnold Rothstein ever thought about, and Rothstein was King of the Gamblers until somebody shot him in the back early one morning in a big New York hotel. Rothstein died laughing at the cops who begged him to name his assassin, and that shooting is still in the ledger of "Unfinished Business" in police court. Officially nobody knows who shot Rothstein, but there are people who know.

RUMORS always spring up after any vague killing, and one of those clinging to the Rothstein case is that it would be impossible to name the actual killer because too many people in high places would be involved. Such exposure would undermine public confidence and over-balance any good that would come from bringing one man to justice.

That, as I say, is sheer speculation. You hear a hundred such tales around the bars and the hack stands. But this is a thought: most scandals blow over in time, but the Rothstein case, as a topic of conversation, has never died. You went around town and start talking with people, and out of nowhere somebody suddenly says, "Arnold Rothstein! I wonder who killed him!" It isn't a question.
You don't ask questions, like that.
It's simply an involuntary thought, because that case has always intrigued and has always held the fascination of a secret adventure.

When you hear such a detached query you should always look closely at the man who voices it and at everyone else present, because it is ten to one the man talking has a hunch somebody in the crowd knows.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences (pardon the formidable title but what can you do with it) broke precedent this year.

Not in handing out its awards, of course. Any dole could have forecast the main results simply by putting two, two and Hollywood together. I say this advisedly, inasmuch as even I who look through a glass darkly managed a fair batting average on predictions.

They crossed us up (again!) by two-timing on Betty Davis and Spencer Tracy, who already had an Oscar apiece, but then that was an admitted possibility. (Only appalling prospect is that B. Davis will be up for it again next time, what with "Dark Victory" coming up. Seems to me they ought just to set up a permanent B. Davis Trophy—so the other little girls could win a door-stop once in a while.)

Where they broke precedent, really, was in the party they gave to commemorate the dishing out of the Golden Brass. You can't appreciate that unless you've been to eight or nine or ten Academy Awards Dinners in the past—all as forbidding and dead as the name of the august organization.

THIS YEAR the thing was a party instead of an ordeal. I mean a party where people, even the people who spell Glammer, seemed to have a good time. On the speaker's platform there were plenty of stiff shirts but no stuffed ones. The Academy, somewhere along the path of this past arduous, uncertain year of its existence, seems to have picked up what it lacked before—a Sense of Humor.

And when folks like Edgar Bergen and McCarthy and Sned got up to speak, and Bob Hope, and other guys who know a laugh when they smell one three blocks away, I couldn't help thinking: What a Change... And Shirley Temple can't reach the mike, and giggles like a kid when she muffs her little speech—and is the more charming for it—and Spencer Tracy accepting his Oscar makes a minute speech about its really being meant for Father Flanagan, a speech so modest and so obviously sincere that it almost forbids the applause that crashes over him—and the amusing whimsy in the Disney award, a big Oscar with seven little Oscarettes for "Snow White"... Well, I for one had a good time.

WHAT A change, this, from the old Academy days when speakers made speeches... when everybody was so viddy, viddy careful of his or her Precise Diction that the life was gone from what he or she said to say before he or she said it... which is a terrible way of putting it but typical of the extreme self-consciousness of the horrible occasions happily beyond recall... Beyond recall because Hollywood, in growing up, has learned to relax a little and be itself... And a pretty impressive self, sneerers to the contrary, it is...

Anyway, maybe the difference this year was simply this—that neither Will Hays nor Louis B. Mayer, my favorite orators, got near the mike!

For Jolly Times Sing Cowboy Songs

Here Are Everybody's Favorites
Such grand fun, singing these way-out-west cowboy songs. Heads together you blend voices in this favorite cowboy lament, "The Texas Song":
"I'll take my horse, I'll take my rope
And hit the trail upon the lope,
Say 'Adios' to the Alamo
And turn my head toward Mexico."

For those who don't know the words, the music-songbooks to the rescue! Then gaily you all swing into the romantic tune "Hop Pickin' Time in Happy Valley":
"We'll have a hop-pickin' wedding in the orchard,
And we'll invite ev'ry hop picker too.
When it's hop pickin' time in Happy Valley,
My little Sally, I'll come to you."
Or split your sides laughing, as you sing that jolly ballad, "The Stutterin' Cowboy":
"He stuttered so much, I'm a-tellin' you true,
He had his own broncho a-stutterin' too."

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, March 20.—The New Paltz Fire Department decided at its last regular meeting to participate in two parades. The first appearance will be made at the Hudson Valley Firemen's parade to be held in Catskill on Thursday, June 22. For this parade it has secured the LaFayette Post, No. 37, American Legion Five, Drum and Bugle Corps of Poughkeepsie. The drum corps is noted as one of the best of its type in the state. It was also decided to attend the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's parade held at Wallkill on Saturday, July 15. The Walden Five and Bugle Corps, which on many occasions has accompanied the local fire department, will again make its appearance, representing the New Paltz boys. Due to the lack of apparatus, it was found impossible to attend the state convention to be held at the World's Fair in August.

About six head of cattle from the Abraham Eller dairy farms at Springtown, formerly owned and now managed by Jesse Deyo, will represent the dairy industry at the County Holstein Club but also the Eastern New York Club at the World's Fair to open in New York city April 30. Two Holstein cows—Rivermead Opal 1762113 and Rivermead Melissa 1622945 from the Eller herd have been nominated to be sent to the fair next month as part of the dairy industry exhibit, "The Dairy World of Tomorrow," sponsored by the Borden Company, in which will be demonstrated the production and handling of milk from cow to table. Later Dr. Deyo will send a group of four eight weeks' old calves, three heifers and a bull to represent the Holstein breed in the calf barns at the fair.

Marten, 'Ranger's Cat,'

An Easy Animal to Trap

One of America's outstanding fur bearers is the marten or pine-marten, sometimes referred to as the "ranger's cat." When taken as kittens they make interesting and affectionate pets. Although they are seldom seen in the wild they are among nature's most curiosity ridden children. Most curiosity retreat without first surveying the intruder of their solitude with wide-eyed interest. This trait makes them easy to trap and the old expression, "curiosity killed a cat," certainly applies to the "ranger's cat," according to the American Wildlife Institute.

They share another, rather unpleasant characteristic with domestic cats as many inhabitants of remote cabins in the spruce and pine forests could testify. Many a peaceful slumber has been interrupted by loud caterwauling which begins beneath the cabin floor and moves quickly to the roof or through the branches of nearby trees, for in addition to great voice, these ranger's cats are remarkably agile.

Although a tamed marten is friendly to an almost democratic extreme, when he enters the fur business he travels in none but the most exclusive circles. Most of his fur is sold under the trade name, Hudson sable, or American sable. This year good furs will bring prices ranging between forty and fifty dollars.

Concentrated food in powder form—a meal in a capsule—will be on sale at the California World's Fair on Treasure Island.

All-Day Quilting

Seth, Traced to Hebrew,

Meaning 'the Appointed'

The name Seth is of Hebrew origin and means "the appointed." The Bible Seth was the third son of Adam, writes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Col. Seth Warner (d. 1784) was second in command (under Ethan Allen) at the capture of Ticonderoga and rendered good service throughout the Revolutionary war. Seth W. Cheney (d. 1856) was one of the earliest American artists in black and white and his work is still highly prized by collectors.

Seth Thomas (d. 1859) started making his name one of the most familiar in the country when he founded (in Thomaston, Conn.) what developed into one of the largest clock factories in the world. Seth Boyden (d. 1870) invented a machine for splitting leather and one for making hat bodies, and he made the first malleable cast iron. During late life he developed new varieties of strawberries.

Seth Green (d. 1888) pisciculturist, superintendent of New York State fisheries, was highly successful in breeding fish for stocking lakes and streams. He introduced the shad into Pacific coast waters. Seth C. Chandler (d. 1913) astronomist with Harvard observatory, invented the armucard (for indicating the altitude of stars) and catalogued the variable stars. Seth Pease was a member of the committee of four sent out from Hartford to investigate the Western Reserve after the first white settlers had spent a hard winter here.

Among 'the Four Hundred'

In 1889 Ward McAllister, a New York society leader who was regarded by the smart set as an authority on fashionable matters, declared that there were only about 400 persons who could claim admission into the best social circles. From this circumstance the exclusive society circle of that city came to be called "the Four Hundred." By extension the term is applied to the smart set of any place. McAllister also said there were not more than 400 persons in New York who could walk gracefully across a ballroom floor.

Domestic Reports Showed Favorable Features Monday

Despite weakness in the London market, stocks rallied on the New York Exchange Monday forenoon and industrial averages showed a gain in earlier trading, but later there was more selling and small losses for the day were shown. The selling is said to have come from weaker accounts, with investment selling comparatively small. Volume was 950,000 shares. As measured in the Dow-Jones list industrial averages dropped 0.30 point for the day, to close at 141.28. Rails showed a decline of 0.12 point, to 29.46, and utilities were off 0.23 point, to 23.69.

On the London market there were sharp declines in early trading, a portion of the losses being recovered. The Times industrial average showed a loss of three points for the day and rails were off 1.5 points. Amsterdam Bourse opened weak, but a sharp recovery followed and closing prices were at the day's highest. The Paris Bourse closed weak with trading inactive. Domestic commodity markets showed prices fluctuating, but with an undercurrent of steadiness and the Dow-Jones average showed an advance. In Chicago wheat futures rallied near the close, with prices 1/4 lower to 3/4 higher. There was active buying in cotton futures, with prices closing to 14 points higher. In Worth street prices continued steady, with inquiries limited. Higher prices abroad strengthened the demand for copper.

Bonds were irregular with averages off slightly for the day. Foreign bonds reflected the uncertainties in the European situation. Domestic news reports yesterday indicated a number of favorable features. Early figures indicated that carloadings the past week were at a figure which shows a more than seasonal gain. There are signs of further improvement in construction. National Biscuit announced plans for a $2,000,000 plant at Atlanta, doubling production facilities in that territory. New York state permits for new construction and modernization in February $49,752,569, compared with $33,631,377 in February, residential building being responsible for the rise.

Earnings of the steel industry for the first quarter of this year are expected to be well above the first quarter of 1938, but with slight change from the final quarter of last year. Production for this quarter should show at about 55 per cent of capacity, as compared with output of 31.58 per cent in the first quarter of 1938. An operating profit of $23,000,000 for U. S. Steel is seen possible. Earnings of National Biscuit for this quarter are expected to run around 40 cents a share, vs. 35 cents in 1938 period. United Carbons is expected to show an improvement this quarter, over the $1.10 a share earned in the first three months of 1938.

Secretary of the gold standard said yesterday that he was not worried about the flood of incoming gold at this time and that he saw nothing serious in the fact that gold stocks in this country had passed the $15,000,000,000 mark. Further 1938 net income reports include: Montgomery Ward (year ending January 31), $19,644,956, or $3.60 a share, vs. $19,210,029, or $3.41 a share in 1937. National Enameling had a net loss of $537,598, vs. net income of $278,084, or $2.42 a share in preceding year. Superior Oil, $332,579, or 24 cents, vs. $446,246, or 32 cents a share. Standard Oil of Ohio, net of $1,946,605, or $1.81 a share, vs. net year before of $3,362,960, or $3.66 a share. Keith-Albee-Orpheum, $996,996, or 45 cents a share, vs. $1,300,888, or 70 cents a share in 1937.

Trunk Yields Treasure

Pittsford, N. Y. (AP)—From an old trunk in his attic, Frank W. Pugsley, 68, lifelong resident of this village, believes he has taken a valuable treasure—a copy of the Declaration of Independence bearing genuine signatures of the 56 Continental Congress members. His great-great-grandfather, James Smith, was one of the signers of the declaration. Pugsley believes his ancestor made a copy and persuaded fellow-members to sign it as a keepsake. Pugsley will go to Washington soon to check the value of his discovery.

Old Cathedral Owes Its Site to Wandering Bossy

Durham cathedral, one of the oldest in Britain, actually owes its site to the wanderings of a lost dun cow, says C. M. Turner, of the Associated British and Irish railways. The "Dun Cow," a mild plump beast, still gazes out from a sculptured panel outside the Nine Altars chapel, commemorating the heaven-sent incident that told a group of bewildered monks where to build their church.

The legend goes that the monks, who were carrying the body of St. Cuthbert, came to a place where the body stuck fast and resisted all efforts to budge it. It was as though some magnetic force had clamped it to the ground. "Which strange and unforeseen accident produced great astonishment in the hearts of the monks," says an old chronicler; "whereupon they fasted and prayed three days with great devotion, to know by revelation from God what to do with the holy body."

The revelation came: They were to take the body to a place called Dunholme. They were still in perplexity, not knowing where Dunholme was; but it happened that a woman passed who had lost her cow, and they heard another woman shout that her cow was "in Dunholme." So the monks proceeded with joy to Dunholme, where they set up "a little Church of Wands and Branches." Such was the founding of Durham cathedral, A. D. 997.

Says Memel Is Next

Cleveland, March 21 (AP)—Norman D. Davis, former American ambassador-at-large in Europe, predicted today Germany will "seize Memel within the next few weeks, possibly sooner, without question." The national chairman

Hercules, Barmanns Wind Up National Division Tonight

The Hercules Powdermen meet the Barmanns tonight at the Municipal Auditorium in what will be the last game of the regular season in the National Division of the City Basketball League. Two American Division games are also on the docket for tonight, and will find the Fort Packers stacked up against the Boston Cleaners, while Fullers will still be trying for their first win this season when they meet the J. Y. A.

Barmanns will risk their first place tie with Baltz's when they line up against the Powdermen at the auditorium tonight. The Powdermen have only one defeat against them in the second half, that at the hands of Leonard, and if the Hercules can turn back the Powdermen tonight they will have an opportunity to play off the second half tie with their arch rivals, Baltz Pajamas.

In the American Division, with plenty of games left yet to play, Forts, the nemesis of champions, will be out to yank the Boston

Cleaners out of the championship. The Cleaners hold undisputed sway over the American Division laurels, but if Forts should by any chance be able to come out victorious tonight, this division will be tied up in a knot.

Tonight's Schedule

Ex-Pitt Player Becomes Coach

Pittsburgh, March 21 (AP)—The mantle of two men who for two decades made the University of Pittsburgh's football teams a power on the nation's collegiate gridirons—Glenn S. (Pop) Warner and Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland—fell today to a student of both, Charles W. Bowser.

Bowser, called "Chocel" by his closest friends since his high school days at Johnstown, Pa., was named last night by the board of trustees that at the same three-hour closed session appointed a committee of seven to investigate "all phases" of the stormy athletic situation at Pitt.

The new head coach left high school in April of his senior year, 1917, to go overseas with the Ambulance Service. He entered Pitt in 1919 and played guard, tackle, quarterback and center under Warner.

Graduated in 1923, he went to Grove City, Pa., College, later becoming head coach, served three seasons as an assistant under Sutherland at Pitt, then went to Bowdoin as head coach.

Bowser was given a three-year contract at a reputed salary of $7,500, while Sutherland's salary was generally understood here to have been $13,000.

The games this evening will get under way promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

Loyola-L. I. U. In Final Clash

New York, March 21 (AP)—Two of the nation's top court teams, Loyola of Chicago and Long Island University, will meet Wednesday night in the final of the invitation tournament sponsored by the Metropolitan Basketball Writers Association in Madison Square Garden.

These two paladins of the west and the east, won through the semi-final round and furthered their unblemished records last night in one of the fiercest double-headers of Madison Square Garden history. Loyola downed St. John's of Brooklyn, 51 to 46, in an overtime period, and L. I. U. whipped Bradley Tech of Peoria, Ill., 36-32.

In a special consolation game, New Mexico Aggies defeated Roanoke, 55 to 52. Each had been beaten in the first round.

A crowd of 18,206, third largest in the history of Madison Square Garden basketball, saw the games.

Gardens such as those that surrounded Japanese feudal castles 300 years ago will be seen around the Japanese Pavilion at the World's Fair of the West.

Tourney Is Duel For Berg, Lawson

Southern Pines, N. C., March 21 (AP)—The mid-south women's 54-hole medal play golf tournament seemed today to have turned into a duel between Patty Berg, the national champion, and Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel, N. C., champion in 1937.

Miss Berg, cracking long drives through chilly winds, registered 37-38-78, eight under women's par and a record for the Southern Pines Country Club course.

In the first 18 holes of the competition yesterday.

Miss Page was but two strokes behind, with 41-36-77. The North Carolina star lost in the National finals to Miss Berg last year.

These two players were well ahead of the rest of the field of two score competitors. Finishing the first round in third place was Allene Hoover of Thomasville, N. C., who had 81. Mrs. Thomas Rudel of New York was fourth with 84.

Jersey Reds Won't Return, No Game Wednesday Night

There will be no basketball game at the municipal auditorium Wednesday night, it was announced at noon today by the local committee backing the Colonials.

"Despite the efforts made by Manager Barney Sedran to bring the third playoff game here Wednesday, the management of the Jersey Reds would not consent," said Jack Feye speaking for the local committee.

Manager Muggsy Miller held fast to the decision made by the flip of a coin to play the third game in Union City, N. J., where the Colonials won Sunday after absorbing a terrific beating at the auditorium the Wednesday previous.

An exhibition with L. I. U. on Wednesday could not be arranged, the notice having been too sudden for the collegiate tossers after Miller's refusal to return with the Reds. So Kingston fans will be without basketball tomorrow.

"I hope we can trim Jersey and then bring the Jews to the auditorium next week," said Feye, "but in case our Colonials are eliminated by the Reds we hope to have one more game anyhow, probably with L. I. U."

In the meantime, the Colonials will go to Chicago to play in the national professional team playoffs, meeting several of the west's outstanding quintets.

Federated Sportsmen to Observe Wild Life Week Here Tonight

National Wildlife Week—Many questions are asked regarding this movement which will be observed by the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster county tonight at 7 o'clock in the Stuyvesant Hotel by a banquet. Commissioner Lithgow Osborne of the Conservation Department will be present and deliver an address after which motion pictures will be shown.

What is the meaning of National Wildlife Week? It is a movement originated by "Ding" Darling, who, while head of the U. S. Biological Department, realized the need for educating and making the people of this country more self-conscious of the need for the conservation and preservation of wildlife, not game alone, but all things growing in a wild state, making nature beautiful.

As the head of this department he had the opportunity of observing more closely than others the unnecessary destruction of natural resources which were going on to satisfy the greed of man and put a few dollars in his pockets. Streams were being diverted from their natural courses, which destroyed the fish and aquatic life therein. Marshes, natural breeding grounds for ducks and geese, were drained to furnish more unneeded acres for cultivation, which were afterward found to be unsuitable on account of the condition of the soil, and many other similar projects.

By appearing before sportsmen's organizations, the use of his mighty pen and personal contacts with other persons who needed only guidance and leadership, the National Wildlife Association was formed, and this body at once began the huge task of educating the people of America and to make them realize more fully the need for immediate action if we were to preserve any of our wildlife resources in their natural state.

Funds were needed to carry on this work, again the pen of "Ding" Darling was brought into use and he drew pictures of wildlife, which were reproduced on stamps and sold to those interested in this work. These stamps first appeared in 1938. This year they are again available and are of a much larger variety, all done in colors, and include nearly all forms of wild life done by recognized artists who are specialists in their reproductions. By the sale of these stamps and the raising of funds by other means, resources sufficient to carry on this much needed work is provided.

All are asked to help this work along by purchasing these stamps which may be placed on the backs of letters or other mail. They can be procured at sporting goods stores or from members of the Fish and Game Associations throughout the county.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

Lakeland, Fla.—Bill Rogell, veteran Detroit shortstop who is fighting to keep his job, takes off from baseball today to play host at a party for orphan children. In the typical Rogell manner, Bill met a group of the kids on the street and stopped to chat. Thus the party—for children of the Keller Orphans' Home in Lakeland. The rest of the Tigers played the Cardinals at St. Petersburg.

Bradenton, Fla.—Paul Derringer today informed Manager Bill McKechnie that he's ready to take his turn on the mound for Cincinnati in exhibition games. The veteran right-hander has been laid up with an attack of influenza.

Clearwater, Fla.—One story is that it was one of Larry MacPhail's plots to instill confidence in his Brooklyn Dodgers when he had them train in a park where the low right field wall is only 290 feet from the plate. Dolph Camilli belted three homers against the Cards yesterday and one drive went at least 350 feet.

MODERATING

Two Tickets in Field In Ellenville Election

Voters of the village of Ellenville are having a contest at their annual charter election today, the caucuses some weeks ago having failed to get together on a fusion ticket, the latter having been the custom for some years past.

The Republicans named for mayor Edmund Zupp, a former trustee of the village. For trustee they nominated Floyd Ackery, a former mayor, and Oliver Brought, who runs for re-election. Ackery declined to run and George Mitcheer was placed on the ticket instead.

Democratic candidates are Benjamin Sparks, trustee who has been serving as acting mayor since the resignation of Mayor W. S. Doyle and who seeks the office of mayor; for trustees Floyd Hovey and Chester Bradford.

Week-end reports were that there was not too much excitement over the affair, but it is not unlikely that more enthusiasm developed before the polls closed today.

Paid in Produce

Gouverneur, N. Y. (AP)—A 110-year-old account book, originally owned by Harry F. Holt, boot-maker and cobbler of the town of DeKalb in 1829 and recently found here, shows payment for accounts in those days often was received in food, grains, land and merchandise. Eight bushels of corn were listed as equivalent to $4; two acres of grass, $4; five and one-half bushels of potatoes, $1.54; one hat, $1.13; three pounds of butter, $3.7; 14 pounds of cheese, $8.4; stage fare to Gouverneur and back, $1, and use of oxen to draw seven cords of wood, $7.5.

Statement Issued Anent the Wicks Civil Service Bill

Senator Arthur H. Wicks of the 29th Senatorial District has issued the following statement in regard to his Civil Service Bill:

During the past few weeks poisonous, untruthful propaganda has been bombarded through the State concerning my bill, Senate 6-1011, relating to appointments and promotions to positions on municipally owned, operated and maintained transit facilities pursuant to the provisions of the Civil Service Law.

This propaganda is not only composed of unscrupulous and, in some instances, libelous statements, but the persons making these statements know them to be false.

This bill was originally introduced on January 4th. It was for the purpose of permitting all the cities of the State to carry out the Home Rule provisions of the Constitution which were adopted at the election held in November, 1938. Nothing in the original bill differed in any respect with the requirements of our State Constitution in public employment.

The bill is statewide in its application and effect.

However, after this bill was introduced it was pointed out that in the city of New York, if unification of the rapid transit lines became effective, the bill as then drawn would have the effect of interrupting the efficient and safe operation of the rapid transit systems in New York city if competitive examinations were required for the employees.

It was further pointed out that men who had served competently in these railroads for many years might be deprived of employment, with resultant hardships to themselves and their families.

Upon coming into possession of these facts, I amended the bill as originally introduced and included the provision which would take care of those now employed on railroads to be acquired and continue them in employment in their present capacity.

Will Not Lose Jobs
The bill as now amended and presented to the Legislature, therefore, assures to the subway workers of New York city that, with the unification of the rapid transit lines, they will not lose their jobs, but will have the full protection and benefits of the Civil Service status equal to those now enjoyed and cherished by the workers in the Independent Subway System.

This status gives them a tenure of life employment during good conduct and also places them in the City Retirement System, entitling them to all of the benefits now enjoyed by city employees, which are far in excess of benefits enjoyed in private employment.

The Constitution of the state of New York requires all employees of the state or its political subdivisions to be appointed and promoted according to merit and fitness as established by Civil Service examinations whenever practicable.

These railroad employees will occupy a position similar to that of policemen, firemen and other hundreds of thousands of Civil Service employees of the state. If there be no legislation enacted on this subject in order to obtain employment on the railroad all of the old employees will have to meet the full provisions of the Civil Service law.

A statement has emanated that, because Chapter 601 of the laws of 1936 requires consideration in the plan of unification for employment of those presently employed, the Civil Service provisions of law will not be required.

The law of 1936 requiring consideration in any plan of unification for such employment necessarily implies that the plan be legal and constitutional, and that such a plan must necessarily take into consideration the constitutional provisions for Civil Service employment.

"Poisonous Statements"
Poisonous statements have emanated that the bill is hostile to labor. These statements are wholly unfounded and untrue.

On the contrary, I point out that the bill gives the men job security, pensions and manifold

FIGURES IN IMPORTANT PARLEYS

While Ivan Maisky, (left) Russian ambassador, conferred in London with Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, on a possible united front in Europe to stop Hitler, Juozas Urbys, (right) foreign affairs minister of Lithuania, was reported in conferences in Berlin with Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop to have agreed to return of Memel to Germany.

civil service protection and advantages which have been enjoyed by civil service workers and which are the envy of the overwhelming majority of workers engaged in private jobs.

Complaint is made that unions cannot exist and function under Civil Service laws. This statement also is wholly untrue.

There are many bonafide trade unions of Civil Service workers; for instance, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the Uniformed Firemen's Association, the American Federation of Municipal Transit Workers, the State, County and Municipal Workers of America and many others which are composed solely of Civil Service employees and are flourishing as trade unions. Some of these unions are affiliates of the American Federation of Labor and some are affiliated with the C.I.O.

This poisonous propaganda has also attempted to convince the transit workers that Civil Service is not required in this present situation. This statement is a fraud and a sham. Without Civil Service rights these subway workers will become a political football. They will be subject to the spoils system.

Support for Bill

This bill has the support of many organizations long known for exceptional accomplishments and friendship for the workers and toilers of the state. The bill has the support of the Civil Service Forum of the state, which is the sponsor of the bill. The bill has the support of the American Legion, which has always advocated the interests of all the workers. The bill also has the support of the New York State Federation of Labor, George Meany, president of this organization, states:

"The State Federation of Labor has always been wholeheartedly in favor of civil service. The State Federation endorsed the constitutional amendment calling for unification, and the people followed labor's recommendation.

"If transit facilities are to be operated by municipal government, it is obvious that transit employees are entitled to the full benefits that come with public employment, just as policemen and firemen are now enjoying under civil service laws.

"There is no more reason for municipal transit employees to be made the victims of a political spoils system than there is for any other class of public employees. All should receive equal treatment under civil service protection. Legislation to bring this about has the wholehearted support of the New York State Federation of Labor."

The bill has likewise received the endorsement of the American Federation of Municipal Transit Workers which, I am informed, took this action by a unanimous vote.

It is obvious to anyone who will examine the facts in this situation that those who are responsible for the opposition to this bill are spreading false and untrue statements throughout the state and, more particularly, to the transit workers of these railroads.

The 60,000 men affected by this bill will receive guarantees granted them by reason of their civil service status, which cannot be interfered with by anyone, whether in or out of public office.

What is the reason for this strange opposition? Can it be that working men who would receive full civil service and assurance under my bill would then not fully accede to outside influences as they do at the present time?

Can it be, as is generally believed, that the opposition to this bill is formulated by those whose influence will be weakened or destroyed by reason of giving to the workers themselves the guarantees above referred to?

Y. W. C. A. Funds Campaign Begins

The annual budget dinner of the Y. W. C. A. was held last evening with a large percentage of workers present to receive their final instructions from Mrs. John B. Sterley, chairman of the finance committee.

After an excellent dinner and spirited singing of campaign songs led by Miss Ruth Bell, Mrs. A. Noble Graham, president of the board, introduced Mayor Conrad J. Heiseleman, one of the guest speakers of the evening.

Mayor Heiseleman pointed out the values of the Young Women's Christian Association and the peculiar privileges which is that of a citizen of the United States to support such an organization.

He stressed the need of Christian character building and suggested that if the workers sold the organization on this basis there would be no question as to the success of the drive.

Mrs. Graham then presented Eliza T. Bookwalter, Boys' Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who brought the felicitations from the Y. M. C. A. and suggested that if the workers were truly sold on the Y. W. C. A. program they would be able to answer any and all criticisms with conviction which would not be weakened.

Harry H. Flemming was introduced and in his remarks he stated two forces of maintaining government: the outward force of arms and the inward force of character. Mr. Flemming said that in the contemporary scene the outward forces are represented by dictatorships with the use of arms; democracies depend on the building of right kind of inward force, a well balanced character.

Mr. Flemming continued that one dollar spent on the project such as the Y. W. C. A. is worth thousands spent in arms and that it is up to the campaign workers to educate the public to the fact that money spent in construction by the Y. W. C. A. is better spent than many times that amount used to salvage what has already been lost.

After Mrs. Sterley had explained the technical side of the campaign, Mrs. Graham wished the group success and cards were distributed among the workers.

The campaign workers will meet for their first report meeting Wednesday at 6:15 at which time Roger H. Loughran will be the speaker. The executive committee invites all who wish to come for the program, whether workers or not, to feel free to do so. The program and report is scheduled for 6:45 o'clock.

Bigelow Says Hitler to Take Poland, Then Dictate Peace

New York, March 21 (AP)—Poulton Bigelow predicts Adolf Hitler will conquer Poland next and then "dictate the peace of Europe."

The 84-year-old historian, who returned yesterday from an annual visit to his friend, the former Kaiser Wilhelm, said "England and France have been bluffing" and the German Fuehrer was the only man in Europe strong enough to enforce peace.

"Hitler will get away with it as long as he lives," Bigelow said.

Free Correct Time And Suggestions on WHERE TO TRADE CALL 1880

"even though he is treading on the toes of the old roosters in Germany. Chamberlain's Munich visit did Hitler a world of good." Scorning the possibility of an Anglo-French-Balkan bloc stopping Hitler, even with the aid of Soviet Russia, Bigelow predicted the return of monarchy with the infant son of Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of the former kaiser, on the throne.
